Day 6 - Let's Get Spendy

THURSDAY'S CALENDAR

8:00 am – Breakfast (Dining Hall) – GET BAG LUNCH!

No lunch in Dining Hall

6:00 pm – Dinner (Dining Hall)

6:30 pm – Live & Silent Auctions (BBQ Area)

7:30 pm – Karaoke (Spring House)

Weather Word

Today's Forecast is the best one yet (also, the only one yet).

High of 73°F, perfect weather for an all day hike.

Potentially grab a jacket when you get back – we're sensing a low of 47 °F.

-Brought to you by O. Uija

Crafts Ending Early

Remember that kid's crafts will be ending early today (at 10:30 am) – so grab that bag lunch and find an adventure for the day!

Auction

Do you love Camp? Do you have enough things and or experiences* in your life? The answer to both of these things is: not enough. Come to the Auction and change that.

Happening right after you stuff yourself with BBQ. Hosted by The Big Seller a.k.a. James Sword.

Still seeking donations. Bring said things and experiences to King's Cabin porch before dinner.*

Karaoke

Spring House • 7:30 pm

Join Boise's finest K-J, Drew Navarro, for a night of contained debauchery as you sing through the 50's till now. Drew knows all the hits, and is gonna spin them all night. Time says 7:30, but we know that it's gonna start out after the auction. So once you've blown out your voice bidding on that sweet tattoo, get ready to blow your voice back in on those Elton John hits. Spring House.

Carnival

The revenue has yet to be counted, but starting around dusk, a mysterious wave washed over Camp. All of a sudden, children were wearing paper hats, and getting sick tattoos on their arms and legs. Faces were painted.

Fortunes were told. Stoic mid-thirty year olds who have lost the joy in their life were made to laugh. Bean bags were thrown. And, a general good time was had by all.

Props to all the musicians including: Eric Benson, Drew Navarro, Jeremy Bullis, Isa Soloman, Victor Aguiar, and Camp Director Dean. The usual cast of characters.

And, a HUGE shout out to Moriah and Locomotion Lars for making it happen!

This Made Me Laugh

"Where do chicks come from?"

... "Chickcago"

Well played, Jackson!

Bumper Crop of Mosquito Eaters Begg the Question: Where Are All the Mosquitos!?

For those too young to remember it, the Dell (Co-Op Camp's Campgrounds) was once the happeningest of places, home to the Swamp and near endless strands of novelty lights.

But all that population came at a price, and that price was mosquitos!

Now dear reader I hear you, lamenting the knuckle-sized bump on your forehead and saying 'the mosquitos seem to be doing just fine to me!'

But do they? Really? Ask yourself where are the bottles of Calamine being emptied onto the bump ridden bodies of our tastiest campers.

Ask yourself why the mosquito eaters flying around your cabin bathroom at night have gotten so unbelievably large.

I dare say it isn't insular gigantism, if anything it is clear we have been providing an insufficient amount of campers in their classic mosquito feeding grounds.

So consider doing a favor to both your budget and the dwindling mosquito population, let's camp again, Sierra, Swamp Forever!

Adventures at Indian Pools

The previous edition contained a good deal of true and correct reportage about our little known assault on Indian Pools (OK, it's a hike of about a mile with 200 ft of elevation). They want you to believe that it was just an ordinary walk in the woods. Not at all – in truth we found a number of extraordinary old friends and met a couple of new ones. Stu Blank reminded us that we had met the blue larkspur before, but never in such profusion. The wild Western Azalea cheered on Raoul Duke's attempt to provide some excitement to the brown trout in Big Creek, and consoled his abject failure. The opinion of the trout was not recorded.

Noah reminded us that our beloved Mariposa lilies had never been seen in such profusion. The small yellow Pretty Face flowers hid among the lovely, scarlet Indian Paintbrush (would that now be "Indigenous People's Paint brush"?). Amy Carlstadt renewed her acquaintance with the "Mountain Pride" Penstemon and the pale blue Mountain Coyote Mint. The Alpine Shooting Stars celebrated the emergence of Kai Weber, Venus-like, from the cooling waters of Big Creek under the full body massage of the waterfall. Ed had never met the pink Mountain Spirea or the seductive white flowers of the Mountain Whiskerbrush. And who wouldn't want to make friends with someone named Slimflower Scurfpea??

Is this Venus-like, or what??

Bottom Line, Fabulous display of wildflowers, easy hike starting from the very back of the parking lot at the China Peak Ski Area – best in many years! Where's my drink?

Amy's Soap Box

The showing of the soap flower is one of the most spectacular displays of soap. Flower. Show. If you want to see the showing, be at the soap flower no later than 6 45 PM! Amy will tell you where to go. Definitely ask Amy about this all day long. Only this and nothing else, especially not happy hour, which is at Meadow. Wait – meadow, sunset? Guess you gotta keep reading to find out.

Ok but seriously, she wants you to know that this year's display is especially the most spectacular.

It's Happy Hour

It's going to happen at Sunset. The place, not the time. The back of the cabin, not the porch. Deck will not support anyone, so don't go there. But do go to Sunset for Happy Hour. Bring stuff. But also, save enough for Friday as well.

Crossword Solution

Kudos to Ken for keeping Camp clever.
