POTHoles OPEN, BUT WALK CAREFULLY

Intrepid hikers have already scoped out the trail - a little scruffy, but passable. The water's wet, the wildflowers are blooming — get thee to the potholes, Camper! However, you do need to watch your step. A rattlesnake was seen sunning itself on the trail. So, watch where you walk, especially with children.

If you see a snake, keep calm and keep your distance! They generally want to stay away from people, but if you startle them, they can be dangerous.

NEXT GENERATION SJE: "SHUTTLLING JUST EATERS"

For those who need a little assistance coming and going from the Dining Hall, check out Camp's new shuttle service. When the meal bell rings, the shuttle cart will arrive in front of the store. If you need door service, let Paul know at (408) 306-9988 (you may have to call more than once). We are looking for a name for the service. Come on, creative Campers.

Shoutout to our first customers: Marge & Louise. Reviews are in: "No complaints yet." We'll take it.

CURRENT EVENTS DISCUSSION

We'll meet in the Rec Hall and go around the circle twice, giving each person 2-4 minutes to express what is important to them about current events. Then go to open discussion.

HEADS, SHOULDERS, KNEES & TOES!

Are your dogs barking? Give those puppies a proper workout with this foot stretching and strengthening class. Get prepared for a day on your feet by giving them a little extra love (and learn a few other useful stretches for the rest of your body) with certified Pilates instructor Rebecca. Loose fitting or stretchy clothing recommended.

BIG CREEK POOL

Big creek school would like to announce that their pool with extra life guards is open monday, Weds and thurs this week from 1-4:30 pm. $3 a person.

HERB WALK & FORAGING FEST

What's great this year is the onion plant is going to start blooming - prbobbably today or tomorrow! We will meet at the flagpole and walk around camp, pointing out native plants and picking some for burning (editors note: NOT for burning around Camp - take them home)! We will especially look for mugwort, as that smells very nice when you burn it.

THINK

For a better world,
before you speak,
apply the THINK test.

Is it:

True?

Helpful?

Inspiring?

Necessary?

Kind?

HEALTH CHECK

Do you need a bandaid???

First Aid supplies are available in the bathroom at King. Don't forget to let your body adjust to the elevation. Stay hydrated and rest when needed. Stay safe, Campers!

~~had any previous dealings with bat extraction, I suggested going to see if Victor could help. Victor was extremely helpful offering a very short broom and sending him off with the words of encouragement, 'You got this!'.~~

Ab came back to the room but couldn't find it so I came out of hiding to help in the search. We cautiously lifted curtains and peeked behind dressers and any other nooks and crannies a bat might find comforting considering the circumstances. We found him in a most disturbing location!

As I hunkered down in the room across the hall, I listened to the scuffle as Ab and bat faced off. He managed to get the bat out from under the top bunk (about a foot and a half above where my head would be lying) with the broom. It began to circle just inches above his head. Attempts to capture it with a towel were unsuccessful but luckily the room has a door to the deck and the bat found it and flew out to safety to continue his mission of ridding the world of all the pesky pests!! Whew!! 🙌

Fortunately, Lenore, across the hall heard only a little 'commotion' and thought nothing of it. Glad we didn't disturb her too much!!

ASK AMY

If you can find her.

CHIROPTERAN IN THE HOUSE!

Saturday night at approximately 11pm, a very tiny flying creature decided to visit Sunset Lodge Room 5! All ready to snuggle down for the night, I was sitting on the edge of our double/twin bunk when in flies a petite roamer of the night. He must've been confused in the light and seeking darkness, found a little nook to hide out in.

Well, not being a fan of bats in such close proximity, of course I jumped up, screamed and ran out of the room slamming the door behind me!!

My husband, Abimael, came to the rescue however, having never

AUCTION THURSDAY

For the Auction this Thursday, those of us volunteering have a couple of requests.

Please put any items on the porch at King Cabin by Wednesday evening. When people give us items on Thursday (when we are trying to manage the auction), it is difficult for us to focus.

If you have an item that has a special value or you need to tell us something special about it, please let Jane or Obo know by Wednesday. You can even give it to us personally.

On Auction Night, please allow those of us volunteering to get our dinner early. Normally we would not cut in line, we promise, but we need to get organized. Thanks so much!

MOUNTAIN WINDS (HEARD AROUND CAMP)

"There's at least 25 different kinds of wildflowers at Indigenous People's Pools. PEAK SEASON."

"You'd probably have a bouncy-house at your 250th birthday party too."

"I have ologists coming out the yin-yang."

"I have something that is stuck and needs unsticking and something that is unstuck and needs sticking."

MUG SHOTS

Campers have already staked claim on their favorite morning coffee mugs! But remember, the mugs are for use in Dining Hall only! Mugs were donated by site holders.

This cute mug rack was donated by Erin who you may remember was on camp staff the past few years. She used the mug rack (that her cousin made from a pallet) at her bridal shower. And she married Drew who was also camp staff. Drew proposed to Erin at Slippery Slides!

Congratulations to the newlyweds!

MEET CAMP STAFF

Meet the Camp Sierra staff!

John, Chrys, Jacob, Saraleen and Jackie. Missing Elizabeth.

Hardest working crew in the mountains!
