That's Almost All, Folks!

It's been an amazing year. Thank you all for your contribution to Co-op Camp. Can't wait to see you next year with all your friends and family (who didn't show up this year).

Words, Words, Words

Words were sung, words were spoken. Isaiah rocked the keys, and Ashiah stunned us with her vocals! Nostalgia was stirred with an acappella rendition of "I Feel Silly" by Moriah, Isa, Stephen, Kylie, and Christopher. We hope to see more talented campers next year (see horoscope).

Tip Top Shape

Record setting tip collection! Clearly you all read your horoscopes.

An amount to beat has been set for next year – we collected $1,020 for our amazing Camp Sierra Staff! Hopefully that means they'll come back next summer.

2 Year Old Terrifies Parents

Selah could not be stopped and made a heroic dive into the water at the Big Creek Pool!

Triathlon observers impressed; bystanders suspect genetic modification. Looking for gills as we speak.

For Everyone Who Reads the Newspaper

"It's really good, right??"

-Not submitted by a newspaper editor

The Twin Pines Editors say, "thank you, MG!"

Check Out the Big Brain!

Congratulations to Clare Madera for graduating with a degree in Geology from UCLA. She rocks! (And she's never heard that joke before).

Recappy Hour

"Everybody's leftovers were delicious. No better way to finish off the week of Happy Hours than at the Friday Shabbat. Another great one for the books – thanks to the Campers at Circle Lodge!"

-Editors of the Twin Pines

Assistants to the Director of Happy Hour

Final Hike Review

By Noah, pending PHD in Twin Pines-ology

A dusty hill. The incline is punishing, and the trail shows the wages of disuse. There are treacherous rocks, and a growing blackberry patch to navigate.

But at the top - the hiker is rewarded with a beautiful sight: a table, laid out with the week's bounty; smiling faces, friendly chat, and a welcome drink! The Circle Lodge porch offers shade, company, and respite from the hikes and sun. The hour, happily spent, passes all too fast.

Turns out, the real hike was the friends we made along the way. See you next year Co-op Campers!

[TP Editorial: We ❤️ you too, Noah]

Potholes Trail

Dictated, not read – by David Laverine

The potholes trail this year is crazy. Just one plant, ceanothus deer brush, has taken over that trail before, but it's the main plant out there.

First creek across is hard to get over with two giant burned Ponderosa Pines. The creek is flowing as much as the mouth of the swimming hole flows on a normal year. Ask David about the culvert tunnel.

Lots of cool flowers I've never seen before! All these views we've never seen - because there's no trees (and shade to the valley floor) and all the water is moving [swiftly]. Quite amazing: I was here two years ago and now all these plants have doubled or tripled [or quadrupled] in size.

Proposed Solution for Traffic Problems at the Hut

Cub reporter J. Olsen delivered a photo of the latest CalTrans solution to the Hungry Hut's traffic jam which was previously reported on. He apologizes for the lack of yesterday's photo. He has some green rocks in his possession and thinks there may be a correlation.

Proposed traffic solution [tunnels]

Shaver Lake: Official Point on the Map in the Marvel Cinematic Universe

When Captain Marvel (Brie Larsen) crashes her plane, it's in good old Shaver Lake. It was filmed along what is known as McDonald Cove in May of 2018. The more you know.

Cabins For Sale

When you're Jonesing for Camp Sierra, check Zillow for cabins available for purchase [with money].

Glamp Sierra

Love Camp and can't wait to get back?? Good news for you – in addition to the Co-op week, another group of Campers are organizing a long weekend of "adult summer camp!" Families are welcome, though (limited) programming is specific to adults.

Coming off a successful soft open in 2021, we will be doing a second Glamp Sierra again this year. Another weekend at Camp Sierra with good vibes, and a lot of time spent sitting around the BBQ Pit.

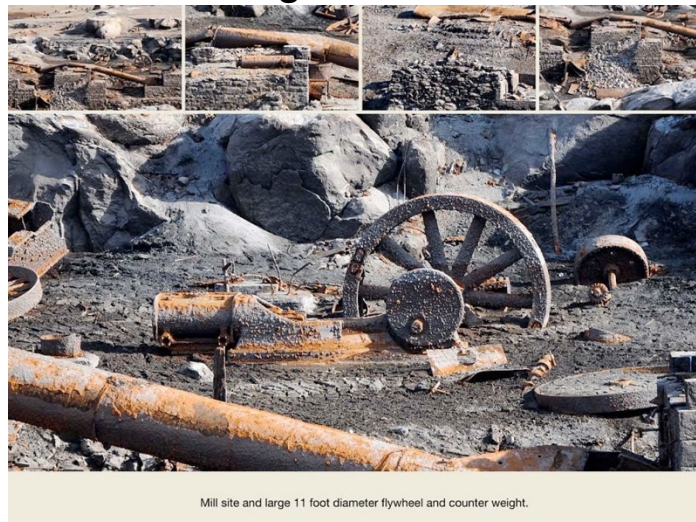

Thursday, August 10 – Sunday August 13. See www.glampsierra.com for details!

Don't click the link here. It's not a smart paper (yet).

Your Pet Misses You

Remember to have treats in your pocket when you come home. Just don't tell them that you're heading back to Camp again next year.

Dam! Interesting Fact!

19th Century lumber mill is located directly behind the Shaver Lake dam.

Mountain Winds

"We're tough, we lived through the 60's man."

"Okay. Got that party started. Now I'm coming up here!"

"Well this counts as the bath tonight."

"The moon is the hardest thing to take a picture of."

Laverine Facts

Giant seed pods found outside Camp dorm. Guaranteed doubling of Camp attendance next year.

This Year's Paper Was Sponsored By: Major Dickinson & Happy Hour

The 2023 Twin Pines was done in complete support of the writer's strike.

If you enjoyed this week's paper, make a donation to the Campership Fund, in the name of journalism.
